Staying Up Late at Orange Regional Museum

Celebrate the return of spring with food, wine, live music and history at the upcoming Museum up Late event at Orange Regional Museum.

Orange Mayor Reg Kidd said the event was becoming increasingly popular so it was best to secure your tickets early.

“People of all ages and demographics have been coming to the Museum Up Late events regularly but none more so than the “20 and 30 somethings” of Orange,” Cr Kidd said.

“It is wonderful people of this age demographic and younger can appreciate the history of the region in a way that suits them.”

Orange Regional Museum will open from 6pm-10pm on Friday 21 September with a great line up of local musicians, including Smith & Jones, James Rutten and The Hip Replacements.

Event sponsors Rowlee Wines will be serving the 2018 Pinot Gris, Rose and Pinot Noir, and Groundstone Café will open serving beer, cider and meals.

Orange City Council Services Policy Committee Chair Cr Stephen Nugent said the event was designed to showcase the region in a relaxed setting.

“There will be treasure hunts, trivia and apron making,” Cr Nugent said.

Tickets are $15 and include all entertainment, a complimentary drink on arrival and grazing platters.

More information and booking for this one night only event can be found via <https://uplateregional.eventbrite.com.au> or by following Orange Regional Museum on Facebook
